Physicians Agree That Miss Bryat Was Alive When Decapitated.

Also That the Murder Was Committed or the Spot Where the Body Was Discov-ered—Damaging Testimony Piled . Up Against the Accused.

Newport, April 24.—Wednesday afternoon dentist Gillespie, of Greencastle, Ind., was called The examination for the prosecution was conducted by Attorney Hays, of Greeneastle, who has been employed by the family to assist in prosecuting the murderers of Pearl Gillespie identified several letwritten to him by Scott Jack-He testified to seeing Jackson with Pearl Bryan frequently in Greencastic. One day Jackson came to the witness and said he was in agreat deal of trouble over Pear and wanted to know what to do. Witness told him he had better marry her; he said he could never do that. That was about five days before Jackson returned to Cincinnati during the holidays.

Mayor Caldwell, of Cincinati, was then called and narrated the statements Jackson had made to him after his arrest, all of which has been published.

During the time the mayor was detailing the story of Scott Jackson's arrest and the private interview which he and Chief Deitsch had with the pulsoner im-mediately after his arrest, there was not a sound heard in the courtroom save the mayor's voice, the ticking of the big clock on the west wall of the courtroom and the occasional grating of a knife blade and a reporter's dulled pencil. The mayor spoke slowly and deliber-

Dr. J. O. Jenkins was the next and last witness called for the day. He stated that he was a practicing physician and surgeon in Newport. Ky., where he had lived for 15 years, and that he assisted the coroner and other physictans in the post-mortem examination on the body of the woman found near Fort being present as a spectator and in vestigator.

He recited at length the findings of the examination, stating the condition of the various parts of the body, in all of which he corroborated the facts brought out by the testimony of Dr. Tingley and Dr. Carothers.

NEWPORT, Kr., April 24.—Court opened at 9:32 Thursday morning. After the prisoner was brought into the courtroom, Health Officer. J. O. Jenkins was cross examined by Attorney The cuts on the hand would not indicate that the head was cut off during life-not strictly. the witness said. The cuts on Pearl Bryan's hands were found slightly open, and the prosecution, through Dr. Carothers and Coroner Tingley, assert that this condition proved the girl was alive when her head was severed. The object of Crawford's cross-examination was to disprove this.

"Does the skin contract after death, causing wounds to open?" he asked.

"Yes." was the answer.

"What is the effect of rigor mortis?" The muscles are rendered tense by rigor mortis." said Dr. Jenkins. He said that rigor mortis had passed off in the case of Pearl Bryan's body before the au-topsy, and if rigor mortis had passed away there could be a retraction of the skin. There are some circumstances, as poison action, excessive bodily heat or cold, watery condition of blood vessels, lack of oxygen, and there may be other conditions, that cause suspension of coagula-of blood in the body after death. The drugs are oblorine and carbonic acid. It is an undecided question if chloro-form would cause a suspension of coagulation. Chloroform kills by paralyzing the heart. It suspends the contraction of the smaller arter-les and tissues. Dr. Jenkins said there was possibly two pounds of blood in the body when the autopsies were made. This showed that

On redirect examination Dr. Jenkins said that in the autopsies no abnormal condition of any part of the body was found. No sign of any disease that might retard the coagula-tion of the blood was found. An incision in a dead body may cause the wound to gape, but not the skin, the latter being the case in the wounds on Pearl Bryan's neck and hand.

The doctor said that in the autopsy no sign of any drug was found in the body that would have a tendency to retard coagulation, but chloroform evaporates very quickly. The prosecution said that Dr. F.W. Fishback would be the last physician they would put on the stand. He assisted in the autopsy on Pearl Bryan's body. The head had evidently been out off by a knife, passing from left to right. It was a clean cut, but for evidence of backing on the vertebræ. He said the blood clot in the pulmonary artery was four inches from the heart. The other doctor said one inch. Otherwise he corroborated the testimony of the previous experts.

He said if the head was cut off before the heart ceased to contract the blood would be drained from the body completely. If cut off five minutes after death the blood would leave only by gravitation.

Col Nelson asked the witness what the blood spattered on the privet bushes would indicate. Crawford objected to the broad manner in which the question was asked.

Judge Helm put the question. Dr Fishback said the spurting came from a live body. The cross-examination then began.

Dr. Fishback contradicted Jenkins on several technical points regarding the coagula-

A bunch of white wild flowers were on Judge Helm's bench when he opened court at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The judge conulted a law book several minutes and com-monwealth attorney Lockhart stepped for-ward and talked with the judge. Neither At-orney Crawford nor his client, Scott Jackson.

When Col. Crawford came he also had a pri-The court said: "I understand that the prosecution has decided not to present arguments."

"Yes, sir."
Speaking to the jurors, the court said:
"Judge Caldwell Wednesday said certain things that Alonzo Walling told in the presence of Scott Jackson. You are to determine by the evidence that will be offered whether Jackson by his conduct admitted on that oceasion the truth of Walling's charges. That The points involved in this decision, as shown by Mayor Caldwell's testimony, are Walling's as-ertions that Jackson told him Pearl Brean was in trouble, that he wanted to poison her, and that he would cut her body to

Edgar Schofield was the first witness called by the prosecution at the afternoon session of the court. He testified to being the agent by whom the atomach of Pearl Bryan and its contents were taken to Dr. W. H. Crane, in Cincinnati Dr W. D. Litter, of near Leesborough, Ky., followed Dr. Schofield. He knew Scott Jackson for six months prior to his arrest, and not very well. The acquaintance was begun at his room in Cincinnati, and he saw little of him. He was present at a conversation between Jackson and Walling about the effects of cocaine in the two prisoners' room. This was about ten days before the finding of the body. The witness was passing the room and Jackson called him in Jackson said that he had claimed that one grain of cocaine in a gramme of water would have the same effeet as the same amount in one-half gramme. and Walling claimed it would not, and they wanted the witness' opinion. The witness said that it was his opinion it would

TRIAL TRIP.

Battleship Massachusetts Given a Preliminary Run.

The Vessel Acted Satisfactorily in Every Way to Her Builders.

She Can Easily Make Sixteen Knots an Hour and Earn Her Constructors a Bo-nus of $100,000—Two Sallors Painfully But Not Seriously Injured.

Boston, April 24.—The battleship Massachusetts was given a preliminary run by the builders over the official course Thursday. The trial was so satisfactory that only two-fifths of the distance was steamed over. The ship was speeded for a little less than two hours, and in that time she averaged 15.59 knots an hour, which is .59 of a knot above her contract speed. If the vessel carries out the expectation raised by her performance Thursday, she should make a full 16 knots on her official trial Saturday and earn her builders a bonus of $100,000.

It was a perfect spring morning when the Massachusetts headed down the bay for the open sea, but there was a heavy swell rolling in from the ocean. This swell soon made itself apparent to those aboard the ship. The Massachusetts poked her nose into a roller and a small sea broke over the bows. This was followed an instant afterwards by a torrent of white crested foaming water, which swept several sailors along the deck like nine pins, two of them receiving painful but not serious injuries.

After the Massachusetts got out to sea the swell was not so heavy, but nevertheless the surge was big enough to materially reduce the speed of the vessel. Despite the heavy swell the Massachusetts hardly rolled at sea and proved that she is an excellent gun

Kills His Wife and Cuts His Throat With a Razor. MEADVILLE, Pa., April 24.-Edward

Karleskind, a prosperous market gardener living near this city, shot and killed his wife Thursday afternoon and then cut his own throat with a razor. No one was present at the time of the killing. Karleskind was known to have an ugly temper and the couple's married life was anything but a pleasant one, to which is attributed the cause of the double crime. Several years ago Karleskind's former wife met an accidental death, and there have been rumors affoat of foul play in connection therewith, which the events of Thursday have revived. He reported her death at the time as due to an accidental fall from a porch, and as no one else was present his statement was ac-
